“Driving the ten-year-old second car didn't worry me—until my job moved down the road fifty miles. For his own peace of mind, my husband gave me an NEC portable phone. I didn't realize what a good idea it was until the fan belt broke in the middle of nowhere.”

Portable phones are no longer luxuries. They are carried by people in every walk of life. Business people, housewives, students and retirees. Carpenters and utility workers. Anyone who's on the go and needs to stay in touch. And the brand more and more people count on is NEC. Because every product that NEC makes, from Ultralite™ laptop computers to compact, colorful pagers, is designed to enhance people's lives. And they are backed by the expertise of a world leader in computers and communications technology. In businesses large and small. In public and private institutions. In homes across the country. NEC is a part of people's lives.

NEC

This is a line. To some, it is seen as a constraint. A limitation. A barrier. The ne

Wind in the face. Steering with the throttle. Shift levers that had to be persuaded into first. More power than brakes. Heaters that only worked when the sun shined.

Sports Cars.

For decades drivers wrinkled their suits and burned their shoes to experience the irony of how so many shortcomings added up to so much driving pleasure.

Supra

But now there's a new kind of sports car dedicated to the proposition that performance and civilized driving do not have to be mutually exclusive.

The revolutionary new Toyota Supra.

The cornerstone of Supra's performance is a world-class power-to-weight ratio. A 320-horsepower 3.0-liter, 24-valve inline-6 with twin-sequential turbochargers keeps the Supra Turbo's power up. Animated to a 6-speed transmission propels the Turbo from zero to sixty in 4.6 seconds.* The same inline-6 delivers 220 horsepower in the normally aspirated model.

Handling all of this power is Toyota Supra. It's taken everything sports cars were before and crossed the line.

acing-style double-wishbone suspension. And when the need arises to put a stop to such performance, Supra is ready with a 4-wheel, 4-channel Anti-lock Brake System (ABS) with ventilated brake rotors.

Keeping weight down is the result of an intensive weight management program that maximizes the use of light-alloy metals, polymer-based components and the kind of ingenuity that achieves a twenty percent reduction in carpet weight by hollowing out the individual carpet fibers.

Safety is treated as an integral part of the Supra performance philosophy. Standard dual air bags, 3-point seatbelts and steel side-door intrusion beams help make Supra as reassuring to drive as it is quick and agile.

Ultimately, though, the real meaning of a sports car is found in the driving. And that's why, in designing the Toyota Supra, crossing the line was not just an end. It was a beginning.

RE: Samsung announces a new way of doing business.

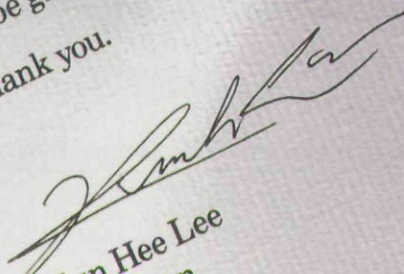

To our global community:

Change is necessary to ensure global success in the future. One small change we've made is the look of our new logo. What's more important is the new philosophy the logo symbolizes:

We will devote our human resources and technology to create superior products and services, thereby contributing to a better global society.

As we at Samsung explore the frontiers of technology, I hope these few simple words will help us focus on the human benefits of our scientific breakthroughs. If we do, the rewards for Samsung, our customers, and the human race as a whole, will be greater than ever before.

Thank you.
